CREATIVE WRITING WORKSHOP

DESCRIPTION

Love writing? Here's your chance to develop your craft, share your work with others, and get guidance from a published author as you work on your own ongoing projects. Discussions will cover fiction writing (short stories and novels), poetry, memoir, screenplays, and any other creative projects people want to explore. This clinic will follow a workshop format, with time divided between working on your own projects and offering feedback to others. The end goal will be to find your writing voice, develop your writing projects, and explore opportunities for further study and/or publication. This clinic is intended for anyone with a strong interest in writing in any genre. You do not need prior experience, coursework, or projects underway. You can come to class with nothing more than a creative impulse and a willingness to support others in their creative efforts.
